'It's about the little girl who lost her life': Tori's father

Rafferty trial begins.

Jury hears disturbing details of eight-year-old Victoria Stafford's murder

The horrifying alleged story of eight-year-old Victoria Stafford's last hours, after she was snatched outside her school and before her body was left under a pile of rocks far from home, was laid out in a London courtroom on Monday.

Tori was abducted by Michael Rafferty and Terri-Lynne McClintic, sexually assaulted and beaten to death on April 8, 2009. Crown attorney Kevin Gowdey told the jury on the first day of Rafferty's trial. McClintic, 21, has already pleaded guilty to first-degree murder and is serving a life sentence.

Rafferty has pleaded not guilty to first-degree murder, sexual assault causing bodily harm and kidnapping.

The jury was warned that over the course of the trial, expected to last two and a half months, they will hear graphic and disturbing evidence. A pathologist will testify that Tori died from repeated blows to her head with a hammer. Blunt impacts to her body also lacerated her liver and fractured her ribs, Gowdey said. Her body, not discovered for 103 days, was found naked from the waist down, clothed only in a Hannah Montana T-shirt.

Rafferty, wearing a grey suit and a blue-striped tie, sat expressionless as he listened to the Gowdey describe the alleged events of the day Tori went missing.

Outside court on Monday,

Tori's father, Rodney Stafford, said it's hard for him to be in the same room as the man accused of killing his daughter, and he hopes Tori's name will be remembered more than the man in the prisoner's dock.

"It's not about Rafferty, it's about the little girl who lost her life," he said, carefully choosing his words because the trial is underway.

Stafford said it's been a struggle for the family to cope with their loss.

"Up, down, all over the place. It's hard to explain," he said. "You can't even put it into words because from one minute to another you're all over the place. One song could change your total demeanour from being positive to a ... whimpering fool. It's not like I want to be like this."

Rafferty trial turns spotlight on London

Tori Stafford. Only two cases in recent history compare to frenzy around man accused in child's death: Police

 ANGELA MULLINS

Hours before the sun rose Monday, media personalities from across Canada were lined up outside downtown London's courthouse, and satellite trucks were staking their claim on parking spaces.

It's a scene that's expected to play out daily as media outlets scramble to cover Michael Rafferty's murder trial and hope to capture what could be the final puzzle piece in eight-year-old Tori Stafford's death.

"I think it might be a bit of the (Paul) Bernardo thing," London police Sgt. Andy Cattrysse said about the fascination with the case.

There are similarities in the cases, such as the drama surrounding the relationship between Rafferty and Terri-Lynne McCutcheon.

McClintic, Rafferty's girlfriend at the time of Tori's

2009 slaying, has pleaded guilty to first-degree murder.

The case, moved from the Woodstock courthouse in hopes of getting an impartial jury, is one of the largest to hit London in recent years. With the 14th-floor courtroom filled to capacity, most media — upward of about 30 people — watched the first day of Rafferty's trial on three television screens in an overflow room.

Cattrysse and other security staff said only two recent cases have generated anywhere close to as much attention in London: The 2009 Bandidos trial and trials in the 1980s for Guy Paul Morin.

The Bandidos trial saw six men convicted in the 2006 execution-style slayings of eight men with ties to the biker gang.

Morin went to trial twice and was convicted the second time around for the 1984 death of a nine-year-old Queensville girl. He was later exonerated by DNA testing.

Missing person. Police release photo of SUV in connection with case

London police have released a photo of an SUV similar to the vehicle they believe a missing woman may have been in the night she disappeared.

Last week, police requested the public's help in locating Vanessa Fotheringham, 24, who was last seen in London on Thursday, Feb. 16.

Police say Fotheringham may have been the occupant of a grey 2002 Saturn Vue with black steel rims and no hubcaps. The vehicle is believed to have been driven on Dundas Street East, as well as around Wharncliffe Road North and Oxford

Theatre. Grand unveils playbill plan

The Grand Theatre's 2012-13 season is filled with enough music, drama, comedy and suspense to whet any thespian-minded Londoners' appetite.

"Each play provides a unique adventure ... balancing different eras, different styles," artistic director Susan Ferley said as the playbill was announced Monday.

Together, she said, the shows resemble a "buffet of many different flavours coming together to delight."

The six-play Mainstage Series kicks off in October with the light-hearted Calendar Girls and culminates in April with Dance Legends, a show highlighting dancers and choreographers from the last 100 years.

In between, The Grand stage will play host to well-known stories — such as Mir-

Lightning counting on post-season experience

MIKE ARSENAULT

Cruising to a 28-8 regular-season record and clinching the No. 1 seed typically earns a team home-court advantage throughout the playoffs. But for the London Lightning, that is not exactly the case.

"It's really not home-court advantage," said Lightning general manager Taylor Brown. "But in this league you have to win on the road and we've done it all year, so we're not too worried about it."

In a scheduling quirk, the first of two NBL of Canada playoff rounds is a three-game series, with the higher-seeded team playing Games 2 and 3 at home and starting the series on the road. In a short series, anything can happen and talent can sometimes take a back seat to fortuitous bounces. Attention to detail takes on a greater importance.

"It's a different season now," Brown said.

But the Lightning roster wasn't built for just regular-season success.

"All of our guys have won championships at different levels," said Brown. "As much as other teams are going to play tougher in the playoffs, our guys

Tory blames Elections Canada for robocall controversy

Protest. Canadians brave cold weather to denounce scandal and demand answers

A Conservative backbencher is suggesting Elections Canada may be to blame for the robocalls affair.

"I suspect that, at the end of the day, if Elections Canada has the resources to do a proper investigation, they'll find they're themselves significantly responsible," Saskatchewan MP Maurice Vellacott said in a statement.

"That tech issues with marrying (Elections Canada) lists to available, electronic phone lists is part of the problem, and in a few instances there may have been malfeasance by one party or the other."

Vellacott says there have been numerous address errors by Elections Canada in each of the six federal elections he has contested.

"This is no reflection on our faithful, local returning officer ... and their office workers. The errors and misinformation are compounded and compounded by Elections Canada's head of-fice," he said.

"We don't even bother trying to chase down, trace back and correct all these Elections Canada errors anymore. Too much valuable campaign time would be used up on such a project."

Vellacott says Elections Canada has flawed voting lists and often gives voters incorrect information.

The robocalls affair broke after it was revealed Elections Canada was investigating an incident in Guelph, Ont., of voters being called on the telephone and told to go to polls that didn't exist during last spring's federal election.

Since then, Canadians in dozens of ridings have reported receiving similar calls, or being telephoned at inconvenient hours or harassed by people purportedly calling on behalf of political parties.

Family members of an 11-year-old boy who killed himself in a case that garnered widespread attention about bullying said Monday they were content despite the acquittal of a teen charged with robbing and assaulting him.

In finding the 13-year-old accused not guilty, Justice Mary Teresa Devlin said she had doubts about the identity of Mitchell Wilson's attacker.

"I believe they followed the law right to the letter (and) I don't think Mitchell would've liked to have seen the law bent for his own benefit," his father Craig Wilson said outside court.

"For that reason, I think we walked out respectfully with our heads held high."

Mitchell, who suffered from muscular dystrophy, killed himself last September, after being subpoenaed to testify in the case.

His family said he was terrified at the prospect of facing the youth accused of slamming his face into the sidewalk, chipping his teeth, and stealing his iPhone in Pickering, Ont., in November

Mitchell Wilson's case drew the attention of media and Premier Dalton McGuinty.

- McGuinty cited the case along with other similar high-profile cases, as reasons to implement tough anti-bullying legislation.

EU eyes quotas for corporate boards

Gender equality.

European Commission says low presence of women in decision-making positions hurts companies' results

The European Union is moving closer to introducing mandatory quotas for the number of women on company boards after businesses failed to make sufficient progress in gender equality over the past year.

The EU's Justice Commissioner Viviane Reding, said Monday that at the current rate it would take more than 40 years for women to hold 40 per cent of board positions in Europe's publicly traded companies.

The European Commission, the EU's executive arm, said that over the past 12 months only 24 companies had signed a pledge to ensure that 30 per cent of their board positions are held by women by 2015. By 2020, that figure should increase to 40 per cent.

Real estate

Home sales expected to outpace 2011

The number of Canadian homes sold this year will outpace 2011 while prices will hold steady in most parts of the country, the country's largest real estate association said Monday in a rosy revision to its 2012 outlook.

The Canadian Real Estate Association said the number of home sales will grow by 0.3 per cent this year to 458,800 from 457,305 units in 2011, largely due to the continuation of low borrowing rates.

The national average price is forecast to dip by 1.1 per cent in 2012 to $359,100 but that's due to a drop-off in multi-million dollar sales activity in Vancouver — Canada's most expensive real estate market.

Prices are expected to remain around current levels in most parts of the country, CREA said.

CREA expects Alberta, Saskatchewan, and Nova Scotia will drive the sales growth this year, offsetting weakness in other provinces.

Police too cozy with press, U.K. media inquiry hears

Former London police commissioner Paul Stephenson stands outside New Scotland Yard in London, in January 2009. SANG TAN/THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Too much gossip between senior police officials and the press has led to breaches in confidentiality, the former head of London's Metropolitan Police said Monday.

Paul Stephenson, who resigned last year over his force's failure to get to grips with the phone hacking scandal at Rupert Murdoch's News International, told Britain's media ethics inquiry that relations between a small number of police managers and the media were closer than necessary.

Stephenson didn't go into detail, but his comments are the latest to underline the often close relations between Britain's national press and its biggest police force.

Senior Scotland Yard official Sue Akers testified last week that journalists paid tens of thousands of pounds' worth of bribes to serving police officers, and Stephenson's former deputy, John Yates, was thrown onto the defensive Thursday after it was revealed that he'd shared Champagne with one of the many journalists who are now suspects in the scandal.

Elizabeth Filkin, a civil servant commissioned by Scotland Yard to review its relationship with the press, testified that she'd been told police had given journalists exclusives in order to avoid embarrassing stories about their personal lives, and that the perception in the lower ranks was that senior officers were loading up on freebies — including a "very large" number of sports tickets.

Asked which media organizations were the most generous, she said: "There was certainly a lot of hospitality given by News International newspapers."

The scandal over the systematic interception of voicemails has rocked Britain's establishment, leading to the arrest or resignation of dozens of reporters, public officials, and News International executives.

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Political interference?

- Stephenson touched on the issue of links between the press and authorities when he revealed that London's deputy mayor, Kit Malthouse, had privately urged him to scale back the investigation into wrongdoing at Murdoch's News of the World.

- Opposition lawmaker Chris Bryant, an outspoken phone hacking victim, said the intervention amounted to "political manipulation" and called on Malthouse to step down.

"You talked to me so I could understand. I appreciate that more than you know."

EVERYBODY'S WORKING FOR THE WEEKEND

SHE SAYS...
Jessica Napier
metronews.ca/shesays

Last week, my friend Amy quit her job. There's nothing particularly interesting about this other than the fact that she gave her notice without any sort of plan for what comes next.

It's pretty bold to give up a stable working environment before you figure out your next step. Simultaneously liberating and terrifying, leaving a bad job is great, but giving up a regular paycheque certainly isn't. Part of me is jealous of Amy's optimism toward her uncertain future; the other part of me needs to pay my rent next month and likes owning a fancy cellphone.

Up until this point, everything has been carefully mapped out for us: go to school, get a job, make money, feel satisfied with your grown-up life, etc. But what happens when you realize that perhaps this isn't exactly where you want to be? Is it too late to hit the reset button on your career?

The short answer is: absolutely not.

For our parents and grandparents, a long-term career with the same company was the holy grail of the working world. But in today's increasingly grim economy, a non-traditional workforce is evolving. We're now expected to embrace instability and jump from job to job with ease. And all of the perks that come with full-time employment — job security, health benefits, retirement plans — just seem like outdated luxuries.

Almost everyone I know is doing something other than working full-time at a stable job. I currently operate three separate work-related email addresses and, on a good week, have up to five different bosses. We're all enrolled in continuing education, freelancing on the side, working on contract and generally not expecting to be in the same job five years down the road.

I'm writing this column on a Sunday afternoon in a crowded coffee shop with more laptops than lattes, and everyone is working on some sort of part-time project. We're all pursuing multiple ambitions and getting by as something/someone else: graphic designer/server, retail manager/blogger, teacher/photographer and so on.

I have one friend who works in banking and is getting her MBA part-time. She recently announced, without even a hint of irony, that she has started babysitting on the side in order to make some extra money. Apparently in a competitive job market you can't be above stealing employment opportunities from 13-year-olds.

So maybe it isn't so crazy to quit your job without a backup plan. As dreams of lifetime employment are replaced with an "until something better comes along" mentality, flexible has become the new full-time.

In The Skin I Live In, Madrid master Pedro Almodóvar turns more Ed Wood than Hollywood. There's weird science and kinky sex.

Antonio Banderas is chilly plastic surgeon Dr. Robert Ledgard who has a laboratory inside his gated mansion where he seeks to invent artificial human skin by radical methods. His home also houses a beautiful, suicidal patient named Vera (Cairo Time's Elena Anaya). This more freaky than frightful, a "B" picture by an "A" director.

Kitsch said Wednesday on the Late Show with David Letterman that customs officers stopped him at the airport and ordered him back to Japan because his passport didn't have enough pages to stamp. Kitsch said he was let in only after proving with his iPhone that he was an actor. would like to see naked.

When they answered Munn and Hendricks, the user, apparently through hacking magic, got onto Munn's and Hendricks' phones, grabbed some scandalous photos and posted them all over the Internet.

Munn's leaked pictures have dirty writing superimposed over hardcore photos of the actress. Hendricks' pics are mostly of the Mad Men star in half-dress, while one is a full-on shot of her world-famous rack.

A rep for Hendricks tells Gossip Cop, "Christina's phone was in fact hacked and photos were stolen," noting, "the topless image is fake and not an image of Christina."

Munn is denying everything — she tweeted that the photos aren't hers. (If real, her pictures are some Hustler-level stuff.)

As we shy away from calling people fat, are we really being kinder calling them curvy? GETTY IMAGES

Is 'curvy' the new fat?

Weight tends to be a sensitive issue at the best of times. But now more than ever it is important to be happy with how you look

wellness@metronews.ca

Calling someone fat isn't very nice — Karl Lagerfeld learned that the hard way, after he called Adele overweight in Metro, drawing the ire of fans everywhere. But using the word "curvy" — is that wrong? It's usually meant as a compliment for a person with the right amount of flesh, in the right places. We're thinking Marilyn Monroe's hips, Christina Hendricks' bosom and Kim Kardashian's round bum.

But what happens if someone has a little too much flesh where they shouldn't? Do they go from being wonderfully curvy to dangerously fat?

The line between the two words has been blurred. Britney Spears for example, has been simultaneously described by tabloids as "out of shape" and "stunning".

Adele is a prime example. Everyone goes on about her weight — she even jokes about it herself (if she could be the face of anything, it would be full fat Coke, she said last September).

So why did Vogue UK smooth out her curves on her February cover?

On the same note, people can't seem to make up their minds as to whether or not 2012 Sports Illustrated Swimsuit cover girl Kate Upton is fat or curvy because her breasts fill her bikini top.

Plus sized model Tara Lynn has posed nude for Vogue Italia, and last summer, and she was the face of H&M's 'Big is Beautiful' swimwear collection. She knows what it's like to be a not-so-skinny girl working in an environment strongly influenced by the size zero.

"Anyone can take one word and use it in an endless context," she says.

"Someone could say 'voluptuous' to mask saying another word such as 'obese'. Thankfully, being plus sized is no longer a taboo, even though the media constantly exposes us to a repetition of skinny images day in, day out, making us feel like we need to fit in."

The need to conform is what drives us to follow trends, and fear exclusion.

"The problem is we can't go all go by one unrealistic body image," adds Lynn.

She believes we need is a diverse perception of beauty covering a broad spectrum of shapes and sizes — no matter what we label them.

"I'm pleading with you to be happy with your body."

Expert opinion

Gwendolyn DeVoie, creator and executive producer of Full Figured Fashion Week

• Calling someone fat is offensive, but do you think people are now using 'curvy' to mean the same thing? I don't think so at all. 'Curvy' and 'fat' are two different terms. Curvy, to me, is a positive term. A woman who is considered curvy can be a size 10 or a size 20. Curves are curves, no matter what the size. When someone describes a woman as being curvy, in my opinion, they are using it in a positive fashion whereas many people tend to use the word fat in a negative fashion. It's actually refreshing to see people now being more accepting of curvy bodies.

Stubbornly resisting change, Old South's London Pride and Kalamata is a quaint restaurant

The confusing duo of names reflects two distinctly different menus. Traditional Greek fare such as Mousaka ($14.95) and Lamb Souvlaki ($18.95) is served alongside English-style fish and chips and diner sandwiches.

I order the irresistible Saganaki — Kaseri cheese fueled by Ouzo ($9.95). It arrives with a flash of flames and sizzles its way onto fresh rolls. Switching gears, I order Halibut and Chips ($12.95) and pay extra for olive oil and feta topped Bouzouki Fries.

The fish is tender, flakey and creamy with an incredible batter that is crispy but not greasy. It is well worth the price.

With a menu and atmosphere that tries to be all things to all people, Kalamata embraces its tradition of friendly service with a cute ambiance that defies any temptation to modernize.

Re-defining 'the dream'

Why are happy people 'rich'?

FUN AND FRUGAL
Leslie Scorgie
money@metronews.ca

I read a Fastcompany.com article last week about how the happiest people are spending their money. It's clear that happy people live lives that are rich; 'rich' meaning balanced and largely stress-free.

Happy people often have a different idea of 'the dream.' Rather than working to afford a big house and two cars, they're creating their own 'dream' based on what makes them fulfilled.

For example, instead of living in the suburbs, many buy smaller, more centrally located homes where they don't need a car.

They save time commuting, exercise more, have fewer expenses and a lower environmental footprint.

Redefining 'the dream' also means less stress. Happy people spend money on affordable experiences, not accumulating 'stuff' that contributes to debt.

For example, many would prefer to travel versus hosting a lavish wedding; while others spend money on house cleaning so that they have more time to spend with their kids.

Prioritizing expenses to afford personally fulfilling experiences also means living within their means. That in turn translates into less debt and reduced stress.

Happy people also find creative ways to make more money. Some become full-time entrepreneurs. Others keep working their nine-to-five job, and turn their hobbies, like photography, music or teaching, into extra income by selling their services or inventing new products.

This crowd is frugal and resourceful, which enables them to save for their vision of retirement. Interestingly, many have selected careers that will carry them well past the traditional retirement age of 65.

Like happy people, choosing to not to keep up with the Joneses can buy you more time to focus on the things that matter to you. And it will help you build financial freedom by avoiding debt and having more money for savings.

Bing 'rich' is about having the freedom to pursue your dreams and afford the price tags associated with those dreams. It's not about living up to society's expectation of 'the dream.'

Say goodbye to the yearly panic

RRSP contributions.

Don't miss the boat again this year. It's time to set up monthly automatic deposits.

YOUR MONEY
Alison Griffiths

You did it again. You went down to the RRSP wire, raided the kids' piggy banks, maybe leaned on your line of credit or put the touch on a grandparent then rushed off to make your last minute contribution.

With just under a year until the next RRSP deadline, you resolutely swear you're not going to do the last minute thing again. But I find that RRSP contribution vows, like New Year's resolutions, tend to get tossed aside in the stampede of life.

Alison's money rule:

"Don't wait until your financial ship comes in. Save for retirement monthly to achieve the most secure nest egg."

Who's planning ahead?

43%

The percentage of 18- to 34-year-olds that do not have an RRSP account.

RRSP by a bit. You won't feel the pinch but the habit, once ingrained, will eventually turn into a nice tax deduction year in and year out.

Another rationale to this plan is the benefit of regular investing, called dollar cost averaging. If you contribute to your RRSP monthly, and invest in a group of quality products at the same time, you will have a much better return over time than those who make haphazard lump sum contributions and investments.

Dollar cost averaging evens out the ups and downs of the stock market and interest rates and also saves you from trying to guess when is the best time to invest. Research shows pretty much everyone gets it wrong over time.

Toss out your takeout menus — cook dinner at home

life@metronews.ca

By the time you get home from work you're starving, tired and ready to pop a frozen burrito in the microwave. (Or, even better, order pizza!)

It might seem like a good idea at the time, but ordering all that takeout is likely having an effect on your wallet — not to mention your waistline.

But there's still hope for home-prepared meals in your future. U.K. culinary star Sophie Wright — the youngest head chef in England at age 20 — insists making dinner doesn't have to be time- or labour-intensive.

"You just need to be well organized," says Wright. "You need to have an idea [of a recipe] in the back of your head. Maybe flick through a cookbook the night before."

Then, rather than stopping for a slice of pizza on the way home, stop at the supermarket and pick up a few bits and make a really nice meal."

If this sounds like a case of easier-said-than-done, Wright shows us how in her new book, Home at 7, Dinner at 8, which is filled with 80 easy, fancy-sounding recipes, such as Honey Roasted Pork Tenderloin and Red Wine, Gorgonzola and Orange Risotto that can be in your belly in less than an hour.

Taking into account that Wright chops food a lot faster than us novice cooks, the chef added on extra time to each recipe and made sure not to use too many pans ("It's terrible washing up after you cook").

But the true test: "My guinea pig is my boyfriend, who is the most incompetent cook," she says, laughing. "I know that if he can do it, anyone can."

Wright's tips:

Keep a non-stick frying pan.

- Always stock your pantry. You can make anything taste good with olive oil, salt, pepper and staple spices like ground cumin, ground coriander, chili and paprika.
- When chopping an onion, chop an extra one. Store it in a sandwich bag in your fridge for the next day.
- Freeze extra fresh herbs. You have them ready to go for the next time you're cooking.

Borrowing basics

Advice. Make sure you choose the right loan — and the right lender

For Metro

Spring is just around the corner, and with it comes visions of putting an addition on the house, landscaping the garden, taking a warm vacation to shake off winter's chill or shelling out big bucks for your (or your child's) wedding. While they are all exciting plans, many Canadians will be asking themselves, how will I ever pay for them?

For some, the answer will be to apply for a loan. "Loans can be used for all sorts of reasons throughout the year, including home renovations, children's education savings or buying a cottage or car," says Christine Zalzal, vice-president of marketing at B2B Trust, a third-party supplier of investment and RRSP loans

There are numerous things to think about when planning to get a loan. / ISTOCKPHOTO/THINKSTOCK in Canada.

When looking for a lender, it's important to make sure the person you deal with at the lending institution is reputable and trustworthy, and that he or she really listens to your needs.

"Both the lender and the borrower have to properly assess the borrower's current and future financial goals before choosing the right type of loan or product," says Zalzal.

It's also important to consider whether you will be able to meet the loan payments if there is a change in your personal situation, such as you or your partner lose your job or you get divorced.

"You have to ask yourself whether you can afford to make a monthly payment on the principal, not just the interest, regardless of your circumstances," says Richard Goyder, vice-president of personal lending at RBC.

When it comes to searching for a lender, Goyder says the best advice is to get professional advice from your banker or financial adviser. "Borrowing money is a big and very personal decision," he says. "You have to ask yourself, how much should I borrow? What's my income? What's the best kind of borrowing for me?"

Before you can determine how much money you should borrow, it's vital to understand how much money you already spend each month and where you spend it. Then you can decide where to trim so you can set aside adequate funds to meet your loan payments.

Regardless of whether you borrow money from a bank or another lending institution, you must make sure you can afford to pay back the loan as per the lending agreement.

"Consumers should sleep easy at night knowing they're comfortable with their borrowing plan," says Zalzal. "If they have anxiety over it, they should revisit it."

Mistakes

Avoid these common blunders when you are planning for a loan

Don't want to end up drowning in loan debt? Richard Goyder, vice-president of personal lending at RBC, reveals some common borrowing mistakes and how to avoid them.

Choosing the wrong type of product. If you use a credit card to borrow a large amount of money, you will get dinged with a high interest rate.

"A better idea is to borrow on a line of credit, which has a lower rate of interest," says Goyder.

Not seeking advice. The different types of borrowing options, including secured and unsecured lines of credit and instalment loans — can be confusing if you are unfamiliar with them. "A financial adviser can explain them and help determine which is best for your situation," says Goyder.

Refusing to create a spending plan. It's a fact — budgets are boring. But they are also necessary to ensure you can meet your monthly loan payments. If you don't have a monthly budget, you may borrow too much and not be able to make the payments. Being unaware of your credit score.

A credit score lets lenders know if you are a safe or poor risk to borrow money. If you don't know your score, you can determine it by doing a credit score report online or having your banker do one for you.

Neglecting to approach your own bank. Although it might be tempting to respond to another lender's flashy advertisement, no one knows your financial situation better than your bank.

Because your banker already has your business, it might mean you will get a better deal than elsewhere.

Having too much debt in too many places. This scenario could land you in serious financial trouble, but there is a solution.

"Consolidating your debt can be a very sensible and clever way of saving yourself money on repayments," says Goyder.

Let a specialist navigate your car loan

Investment.

Most people need to borrow money when purchasing a vehicle

Next to a house, a car or post-secondary education is probably one of the biggest investments you will make.

When purchasing a car, either from a dealership or through a private sale, most people need to secure a loan. The first step is to speak to a specialist who will guide you through the application process and advise you of the available options, says Shahz Beig, associate vice-president, personal lending, TD Canada Trust.

In contrast to a house, you don't need a down payment for a car; you can borrow the entire amount, as long as you qualify. You will need a bill of sale, and proof of registration, ownership and insurance, says Beig.

The interest rate on a car loan depends on the size of the loan and the number of years you take to pay it off. Interest rates for such loans are lower than for unsecured loans, and can be as low as prime plus 1.75 per cent, says Beig.

As a new car buyer, you can choose a fixed or variable rate with a wide range of payment terms. Bear in mind that the longer the term, the lower your monthly payments. For a new car, you can take up to seven years to repay the loan, but you can pay it off at any time.

"For example, if you can take a loan out for $10,000, you can pay it off in full in six months if you please, and there are no penalties or fees associated with that," says Beig.

Since the car is considered collateral against the loan, and a vehicle depreciates over time, you have only up to five years to repay a loan to purchase a used car, and the interest rate would be slightly higher.

Another significant expense is a university or college education. The TD offers undergraduates a line of credit of up to $40,000 over four years at an interest rate of prime plus 1.5 per cent (totaling 4.5 per cent), says Beig. He believes this rate is better than for provincial student assistance programs. The bank also offers lines of credit for post-grads, even up to $200,000, at prime, to qualifying medical and dental students.

If you are looking to build a home, work with a specialist to arrange a loan.

Time to build a dream home

As mortgage rates continue to be relatively low and promise to remain unchanged for at least the short term, this is a good time to consider getting a loan to purchase your dream home.

Start by working with a specialist to get pre-approved, says Farhaneh Haque, director, mortgage advice, TD Canada Trust. This process helps determine the type of loan for which you qualify.

"It gives you the confidence to look at properties that are within your budget," says Haque. "There's nothing worse than falling in love with a home only to find out that you can't afford it."

Part of the pre-approval process involves evaluating your credit rating. "Sometimes we uncover something that you may not even know about, so if there are any skeletons in the closet, we can point you in right direction to rectify that," says Haque.

Selecting the right mortgage — fixed or variable, short or longer term, "open" or "closed" — is as important as finding the right house. Most buyers live in their first house for only about three years so Haque suggests asking about a mortgage's flexibility.

For further information, visit tdcanadatrust.com/homeownership.

Can I pay more towards the principle? If I need to take a short break from payments, can I do that?"

The minimum down payment is five per cent. Of course, it's better to put down a larger amount so payments aren't so overwhelming and you have a better equity position, says Haque.

Homebuyers can tap into their registered retirement savings plans to purchase a home. You and your partner can each withdraw up to $25,000, although some conditions apply and it has to be repaid, generally within 15 years.

Remember that the price of the house is not the only expense; there are also closing fees, moving costs, lawyer payments and other incidentals to consider.

"These need to be built into your budget," says Haque. And in addition to mortgage payments, there are other regular household expenses, including heating, property taxes, maintenance and renovations. A rule of thumb is that monthly housing costs shouldn't be more than 32 per cent of your gross monthly income.

Women in red prove more attractive to men, says study

Desire. Never underestimate the power of a woman in red. A new study looks at what attracts men to women and proves that red really is the colour of love.

life@metronews.ca

Men who participated in the study looked at photographs of women framed by borders of different colours, including red. They were asked to judge how pretty they perceived the women to be.

Later, they viewed images of women wearing red shirts and were asked how much money they'd be willing to spend on each woman if they were on a date with her.

Turns out, the women wearing red or framed in red came out on top. These women were:

- rated significantly more attractive
- rated more sexually desirable

- more likely to be asked to the prom
- more likely to be treated to an expensive date

However, the colour red did not affect other factors the men were asked to comment on about the women, like likeability, intelligence or kindness.

This study could very well be the only scientific document on the effects of colour on behaviour in relationships.

"Much is known about colour physics and colour physiology, but very little about colour psychology," said psychology professor Andrew Elliot, a researcher on the study. "It's fascinating to find that something as ubiquitous as colour can be having an effect on our behaviour without our awareness."

Though society has deemed red the colour of passion, the attraction to it might be more scientific.

Primates offer a clear example. The females of some species will redder when nearing ovulation — sending the message that it's mating time.

"Our research demonstrates a parallel in the way that human and non-human

Ladies, if you're trying to impress the men, wear red. iSTOCK male primates respond to red," said the study's authors.

"As much as men might like to think that they respond to women in a thoughtful, sophisticated manner, it appears that at least to some degree, their preferences and predilections are, in a word, primitive."

Yep, just confirming what we already knew.

Dividing up the birthday dinner bill

I am coordinating a birthday dinner for a friend. Each attendee is expected to pay his/her own bill. The birthday girl's husband is attending. I would like to cover her bill, not his. Any suggestions?

Hostess

Dear Hostess,

Since these two people are a couple, they should be treated as such and so the bill absolutely should be paid for both the birthday girl and her husband. Now, you have several ways to deal with this.

Firstly, you can take the total bill including tip and divide this equally among those who are left paying. This will give you the equal amount each paying person contributes for the total bill including tip. In this scenario, all paying people have paid for themselves and an equal portion for the couple being hosted. Your second option would be to take the total bill including tip divided by the total number of people including the birthday girl and her husband. In this case you are responsible to pay for three shares (yours, the birthday girl's and her husband's). In this scenario, guests pay their own share only and you would be paying for yourself and the two guests. Bon appétit!

Head coach Randy Carlyle gives an animated discourse to the Maple Leafs at a team practice on Monday. STEVE RUSSELL/TORSTAR NEWS SERVICE

Leafs looking to play more conservatively

Game Plan. New coach puts focus on improving defence, shifts away from wide open hockey

The days of wide open hockey are over. Gone is the free-flowing, opportunity-trading game that put the Toronto Maple Leafs on course for another season outside the playoffs.

Randy Carlyle's first couple days as head coach centred around tightening things up.

"I think every team can play better defensively," Carlyle said Monday. "Everybody practises defensive zone coverage, everybody practises neutral ice defensive schemes and everybody practises their fore-check.... We're no different. It just might be a little different from what the previous coaching staff had in place."

"That's all. We're going to continually focus on being somewhat more conservative as far as giving people up in the offensive zone."

It could be a significant shift for the Leafs, who have had trouble keeping the puck out of their net this season. While much of the blame for that fell on goaltenders Jonas Gustavsson and James Reimer under previous coach Ron Wilson, Carlyle seems intent on shifting the onus to his forwards and defencemen as well.

Following a 3-1 victory over Montreal in Carlyle's debut on Saturday night, the Leafs went through a crash course in the new coach's system. He kept players on the ice for roughly two hours of practice on Sunday and Monday.

"That's all part of the learning curve that we feel is necessary to get our message (across) and to sell our program to these players at this time," said Carlyle.

Under Wilson, the Leafs gained a reputation as being one of the fastest teams in the NHL. However, the wide-open style he championed didn't translate particularly well to the nights where his players didn't have their best.

There will be no magic elixir for a team sitting 12th in the Eastern Conference. The Leafs recalled energy forward Jay Rosehill on Monday and might insert him into the lineup Tuesday against the Boston Bruins.

With Wilson at the helm, Rosehill dressed for just 16 games before being sent to the American Hockey League 10 days ago. He'll likely get more of an opportunity under Carlyle, who tends to favour a rough-and-tumble game.

The 26-year-old winger is one of many players in the dressing room feeling rejuvenated.

"There's a different energy here and rightfully so," said Rosehill. "After making a big change like we did, I'm sure that would be the case for any team."

Captain Dion Phaneuf met with Carlyle on Monday morning and said afterward that "it's a fresh start for everyone."

He expects that to be reflected in the game against Boston, which has beaten Toronto four times this season by a combined score of 23-6.

"Right now we're not looking into the past," said Phaneuf. "It's a big game for both teams, but we're not concentrating on the negatives of how we've played against them. We've got to come out, we've got to build on the way that we played in Montreal and keep getting better as a group."

Bruins

Turco gets the call to fill in for injured Rask

The Boston Bruins added some depth to their crease Monday, signing veteran goalie Marty Turco for the rest of the season.

The move will help lighten the load on starter Tim Thomas after backup Tuukka Rask was injured over the weekend.
